

Ku-Ni-Eh Lodge Members,

My name is Rebecca Specht and I am your 2022 NOAC (National Order of the Arrow Conference) contingent leader!

NOAC 2022 is going to be held at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville (UTK)! While you may have seen me on staff at Cub World and Camp Friedlander since 2017, I am also a student at UTK studying mechanical engineering and environmental sustainability. Knoxville is a beautiful city and perfectly located only an hour from the Great Smokey Mountains National Park, which I hike or camp in at least once a month during the school year.

I would like to personally invite all OA members to seriously consider coming to NOAC 2022 with me. Going to NOAC will strengthen you as a leader within scouting and allow you to meet thousands of fellow honor campers to network with. At NOAC, you can learn about innovative leadership ideas, attend fellowship events, see inspirational shows, and go to many other programs.

Yours in Scouting,
Rebecca Specht

Founded in 1794, UT is Tennessee's flagship university and premier public research institution. Located in Knoxville, UT spans 910 acres and is home to over 30,000 undergraduate and graduate students. It's 11 colleges provide over 900 programs of study. 'The Volunteers' or 'Vols' take their nickname from the state's nickname: The Volunteer State. UT and the Order of the Arrow have a rich history together. UT has hosted three previous national OA conferences in 1977, 1992 and 2000.

Home of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville is also the county seat of Knox county. With a population of just over 180,000, Knoxville is the third largest city in the state and is the anchor of the East Tennessee Grand Division. Since our last conference in 2000, Knoxville has built a world-class convention center and boasts a downtown area adjacent to campus that will sure to be a popular destination for conference participants. Temperatures average in the mid 80sF in July and August with average relative humidity around 76%. Lodge contingents will want to take advantage of many local attractions either before or after conference in the Knoxville area and Eastern Tennessee.
